2nd International Conference on Aerospace and Aeronautical Engineering

March 21-23, 2024 | Florence, Italy

It is my pleasure to write this introduction to our next international conference that will be held in Florence, Italy. Although I am a conference chair that's just a part of the process, and I am supported by an excellent team of committee members, reviewers an excellent back, staff of hard-working, planners and administrators.

This is the second conference in the series and has grown because of the respect for the researchers work who have presented before and have allowed us to achieve a demand and respect. All papers accepted be of a high standard with no exception and all papers will undergo a very robust and thorough academic review.

I strongly encourage you to submit a paper, or maybe a poster if starting your academic career. The conference is going to be beneficial to all those in this subject matter, but why not stay on after and visit one of the most amazing cities on this planet. Go and see Michelangelo's statue of David or any of the other amazing museums.

Finally, if you are interested in submitting the paper, please contact us and I look forward to meeting you personally in Florence and to hear you present your research.
